JUNE 27TH - Update on Chloe Webb from the GoFundMe page

Update: it's been a very long 4 weeks, but CHLOE IS HOME! She was discharged from UPMC Presbyterian last Thursday, June 18. Her recovery so far has been nothing short of miraculous; in the immediate hours after the accident, her doctors fully anticipated her being on ECMO for 10-14 days alone due to the state of her lungs. She continues to surprise us all each day with her drive and will to get better. At the beginning of the week she was discharged, Chloe asked when she could go home and was told it would probably be a week and a half to two weeks and was given goals she needed to hit in order to be discharged. Chloe hit every single goal in two days, convincing her doctors that she was ready to leave. One of the biggest goals was walking- the physical therapist told Chloe that in order to be recommended for at home rehab she needed to be able to walk 50 feet with her walker by the end of the week. The very next morning, Chloe made it over 100 feet, determined to not have to go to a rehab facility-she was sent home two days later. She is unable to walk unassisted for another 4-6 weeks; she is currently using a walker and wheelchair to get around. She is seeing an occupational and physical therapist at home a few times a week, and will likely need continual and extensive rehab even after she is able to walk without her walker. Her spinal and rib fractures are continuing to heal, and she seems more like herself every day (she even ate chipotle last week!). She's officially staple and stitch free, and all of her incisions are beginning to heal.

The Webb family quite literally cannot ever say thank you enough for the prayers, well wishes, and contributions and donations for Chloe's healing and recovery. Chloe has fought hard for her life and for her recovery, but none of it would be possible without her doctors, nurses and each and every one of you who sent up prayers, shared her story with others, and kept her and her family in your thoughts over the last month. Chloe cried when she was able to go through this page; she was (and still is) overwhelmed by all of the love and generosity everyone has shown during this difficult time, and wants to say thank you from the bottom of her heart.
